Earn a certificate in Social Emotional Teaching and Learning from The University of Pennsylvania!

The Penn Literacy Network is offering a 3 course sequence to earn a Certificate for Early Childhood Educators in Social Emotional Teaching and Learning in the Trauma Informed Classroom.

Program Description:

PLN's Social Emotional Teaching and Learning certificate will provide three 3-credit courses and a certificate from the University of Pennsylvania's Graduate School of Education through the Penn Literacy Network. The courses are focused on Creating Environments that Promote Positive Social and Emotional Development, Early Childhood Intervention - The impact of Brain Based Learning and mindfulness for teachers and their students. The overarching goal for the certificate program would be to offer a unique, credit-bearing program that can support all educational staff, school mental health professionals and those working in after school programs.

Upon completion of these hybrid courses (in person and online), participants earn 9 continuing education graduate credits and a certificate of completion in Social and Emotional Teaching and Learning.

Courses Included in this Certificate:

- PLN 6A: Early Childhood- Creating Environments that Promote Positive Social and Emotional Development (EDCE 682)
- PLN 5: Early Childhood Intervention - The Impact of Brain Based Learning: Forming and Reforming Early Reading, Writing and Talking Across the Curriculum (EDCE 557)
- PLN 11B: Re-Energizing Our School Communities- Mindfulness-Based Strategies to Support Teaching and Learning (EDCE 654)
